(What masticators!--Just Heaven! what bread, and so, as he finishd the last mouthful of it, we enterd the town of Montreuil. CHAP. IX. There is not a town in all France, which, in my opinion, looks better in the map than Montreuil.--I own, it does not look so well in the book of post-roads;--but when you come to see it,--to be sure it looks most pitifully. There is one thing, however, in it at present very handsome; and that is, the inn-keepers daughter.--She has been eighteen months at Amiens, and six at Paris, in going through her classes; so knits, and sews, and dances, and does the little coquetries very well. A slut! in running them over within these five minutes that I have stood looking at her, she has let fall at least a dozen loops in a white thread stocking.--Yes, yes,--I see, you cunning gipsy!--tis long and taper,--you need not pin it to your knee;--and that tis your own,--and fits you exactly. That Nature should have told this creature a word about a statues thumb! But as this sample is worth all their thumbs,--besides, I have her thumbs and fingers in at the bargain, if they can be any guide to me,--and as Janatone withal (for that is her name) stands so well for a drawing,--may I never draw more; or rather, may I draw like a draught-horse, by main strength, all the days of my life,--if I do not draw her in all her proportions, and with as determind a pencil, as if I had her in the wetttest drapery.--But your Worships choose rather that I give you the length, breadth, and perpendicular height of the great parish-church, or a drawing of the facade of the abbey of St. Austreberte,
